He played in Major League Baseball (MLB) for parts of 19 seasons. He played with the Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox, Los Angeles Dodgers, Chicago White Sox, and Tampa Bay Rays before playing one season at the Chinese Professional Baseball League in Taiwan. Ramirez is recognized for having great batting skill and power. He was a nine-time Silver Slugger and was one of 28 players to hit 500 career home runs. His 21 grand slams are third all-time, and his 29 postseason home runs are the most in MLB history. He appeared in 12 All-Star Games, with a streak of eleven consecutive games beginning in 1998 that included every season that he played with the Red Sox.[1] Ramirez was born in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. When he was 13 years old, he moved to New York City with his parents, Onelcida and Aristides. He attended George Washington High School and became a baseball standout. He was drafted by the Cleveland Indians in the first round of the 1991 MLB draft, 13th overall. He made his MLB debut on September 2, 1993. In 1994, Ramirez became a major league regular, and finished second in voting for the Rookie of the Year Award. By 1995, he had become an All-Star. He was with the Indians in playoff appearance in the 1995 and 1997 World Series. In 1999, Ramirez set the Indians' singleseason RBIs record with 165 RBIs. After the 2000 season, Ramirez signed with the Boston Red Sox. During his time in Boston, Ramirez and teammate David Ortiz became one of the best So many in baseball history. Ramirez and teammate David Ortiz became one of the best So many in baseball history. of a three-team deal that also involved the Pittsburgh Pirates. In 2009 Ramirez was suspended 50 games for violation of his drug policy, [3] and a suspension of 100 games. [4] He chose to retire on April 8 instead of being suspended. [4][5] However, in September 2011, Ramirez wished to be re-established and agreed in December with the league for a reduced suspension of 50 games. Although he played at various points in the Oakland Athletics, Texas Rangers and Chicago Cubs, as well as internationally, Ramirez did not appear in another Major League game. Known as a complete hitter that could reach both the power and the average, and widely regarded as one of the best right hitters of his generation, Ramirez finished his career with a .312 average batting life, 555 home runs (15th all-time), and 1.831 RBI (18th all-time). In 111 postseason games, Ramirez posted an average of batting .285 with 29 home runs and 78 RBI. [1] The first life that Ramirez was born in Santo Dominican Republic to Aristides and Onelcida Ramirez was obsessed with baseball. When I was eight, his grandmother got him a Dodger uniform with number 30 on the back, which she considers to be one of her most valued possessions. [7] In 1985, he moved to the Washington Heights neighboring Snake Hill, the same place that Lou Gehrig played during his childhood. As the watch, Ramirez again reached the 30 Home Run and 100 RBI RBIPost 33 and 107 respectively. He hit his 300th career at home on August 26 against Angels' Ramã³n Ortiz. It was the first of the two Home Runs at night to Ramirez, when he was 5-Para-5 overall. However, Red Sox again posted no strong offensive, ending with a .325, 37 Home and 104 RBI. The second increase in half of the Dominican Companion David Ortiz gave Red Sox a formidal punch of one dois in the middle of Ramirez. However, in the venue, Ramirez lost several games with pharyngitis, [7] but entered hot while he was seen in a bar at the hotel where he lived with a close friend, the unfaithful Yankees Enrique Wilson, despite being supposedly very sick to play in the San against Rivals Yankees. Ramirez and Wilson both kept that Manny was just talking to his friend in this scenery, and not really drinking or celebrating as Mother speculated. [27] Boston Grady Little manager closed Ramirez for a game as a result. [28] Despite this distraction, Red Sox finished season 95-67, qualifying for the MLBtime for the first time with Ramirez. In the fifth decisive game of his Division Series Matchup against Oakland Athletics, Ramirez broke a sixth entrance 1-1 tie, launching a Homer of Train Races against Barry Zito that established an alcs showdown with the rival Yankees. In Alcs game 3, Ramirez was at the center of a bank cleaning fight. In the start of the game, Red Sox's pitcher Pedro Martanez had hit Yankees striker Karim Garcia, with a throwing, triggering a warm diaper, and a hard slip of Garcia for Red Sox's second basement, Todd Walker, had exacerbated the tensions.
